

READERSHIP

Selezione di Elettronica addresses the designers, the engineers and the technicians operating in the fields of research & development, design, and production of electronics systems and equipments, and wishing to be constantly updated on technologies and products driving the innovation in the industry. It represents a useful tool also for the management, for sales and procurement managers and for all the professionals involved in electronics applications in the most disparate industry sectors.

